LTDI Breaking News: Latitude Industries Working With GE Capital to Offer Floor Plan Financing

MIAMI, FL, Jul 18, 2007 (MARKET WIRE via COMTEX) --
Latitude Industries Inc. (PINKSHEETS: LTDI), a manufacturer of high-performance, center console powerboats, announces today that it is completing all the necessary steps and requirements to offer floor plan financing through GE Commercial Distribution Finance to boat dealers nationwide.

"Once again we are pushing to expand our presence in these competitive markets and be able to offer our product to more than 12,000 marine dealers with more than $35 Billion in sales nationwide," said Carolina Hernandez, President and CEO of Latitude Powerboats.

GE Commercial Distribution Finance (CDF) is a leading provider of inventory financing programs that assist in moving products from manufacturers and distributors to dealers and resellers. CDF's specialized inventory finance programs make it possible for dealers to stock sufficient inventory for their businesses at minimal carrying costs.

By taking care of the up-front inventory costs, CDF enables the dealer to purchase needed inventory and pay as the product is sold.

Since when is profitability of a console considered "success" by gamers.
Of course, depends on how you measure success.
That red gameboy box says "play it loud".
I was just gettin to like this guy.
Lots of photos and some graphs.
The controller would not move through the air the same way with this device as it would if you were holding it with your hands, and probably not in a way that would improve accuracy.
Also, this is the same crowd who is real tired of lugging a heavy laptop around as well that half the time won't make it through the whole plane flight.
Almost seem the same doesn't it?
The first GameBoy I had was a blue GameBoy Pocket.
Since when did a company get smacked around so bad for adding a three year warranty!
What he brought to MS was the childishness of the Sega-BigN days?

Such a platform would have almost certainly lost market share to the PSP.
And considering the Palm first made the stylus stylish, wouldn't it make sense for them to take the next step?
But something tells me my neighbor is raking in slightly more revenue.
His analysis of his own company is predictably skewed, but still acknowledges reality.
The controller would not move through the air the same way with this device as it would if you were holding it with your hands, and probably not in a way that would improve accuracy.
Do a bit of research.
I seriously believe that MS would be in a much worse position without Moore these last few years.
It is really impressive.
Then you resign from your current job to work for a company who makes products for or Sony.
Considering that was what they were losing before, and the way the prices for blue ray diodes have dropped.
Why don't they just do a sexier Treo?
I remember going to Toys R Us with my mom, and she bought it for me so I'd have it for a long trip we were going on.
Much like Apple's iTunes store, the revenue stream of selling those systems leads to indirect profits through accessory and software sales, licensing, etc.
Not of his own company, of Sony.
I'm sure that was more because in marking it out as a separate concern, they could ditch it easily if no one took to it.
Release a device like the Q, but with the Palm OS.
All of them are dead in the water.
He's not always right but he has a great deal of knowledge that I think was instrumental in the Microsoft Xbox consoles being where they are today.
It's absolutely failing.
In this case, it's more likely that EA offered him a plum job that Microsoft couldn't match.
Wasn't that the iPod slogan for a while?
And that's notwithstanding any recalls.
Do a bit of research.
It'll be no surprise to me if they never mention the 'old name' again.
No one knew what to expect until it was revealed.
What will be the fate of Reggie?
It's just a computer in small package.
Now, I have an ultra portable, and a Lifedrive.
Take THAT, Microsoft.
Countless Photoshop-ed pictures flooded gaming messageboards and blogs.
Man, I loved that thing.
Looking back at the original now it looks huge, I still have my somewhere.

Sure there are some new bells and whistle but nothing amazing.
With gaming, think of it like sports.
The end result is: Peter loses his hand but stays in the game, while Ken goes bust.
Conversation goes like this: Peter: I'm leaving to head up EA.
I think both kids and adults love it.
Outside of conference rooms and PR briefings, the word "expectation" shouldn't even be uttered.
If Apple uses it, the device is complete crap.

Interesting isn't it.

Like a very wise man once said, it's better to burn out than it is to rust.

When everyone went 'Huh?

NO, THEY'RE NOTAs manufacturing prices get cheaper, usually most business pass on savings to their customers.

Microsoft makes more money off of Windows Office, and IE then it knows what to do with.
